Product Description

When a child just needs to hit something, teach them to turn that energy into something rhythmic and beautiful with the Freestanding Percussion Panel with Posts. Designed with an inviting, smile-like face, the Freestanding Percussion Panel with Posts draws children in and keeps them entertained with its numerous music-making percussive features. Toddlers and preschool and school aged children will all delight in spinning the spherical rattles at the top of the circular panel, while they and their friends bang out different tones on the drums below. This stable structure is an excellent way to help children get their extra energy out in a fun, constructive, and educational way. Early noise making can quickly transition into the discovery of rhythm and mastery of tone that belies latent musical talent. In short order, a frustrated child may be beating out bossa nova rhythms and dreaming up a future behind the drum kit. The Freestanding Percussion Panel with Posts is available in primary and neutral colors. Customized colors for the panel and posts are also available.
