OUR STORY

One day during a physical therapy session, a therapist grew frustrated with a young patient's gait belt. The gait belt — used for mobility assistance — kept sliding up to the patient's chest. At this moment, an idea was born. The therapist went to a hardware store, bought a construction vest, and convinced his talented mother to sew on some sturdy handles, creating a new and far superior tool for his patient's therapy. It was a success.

After 8 years of design iterations, as well as finding the strongest, most versatile, and comfortable materials available, the Universal Vests (UVests) came to be.

UVests comes with ten strategically placed handles and a low back compression belt for increased stability and support.

The UVests cape/gurney can be attached to the back of the vest and folds out conveniently, when needed, to lift almost anyone.

“ Having the ability to hang on to them from behind or from the front...even to be able to easily lift...It's really comforting to know we can do our jobs! ”
- Lori, Physical Therapist
